HEARTS By HALLIE ERMINE RIVES. COURAGEOUS

Copyright, 1902, by The Bowen-Merrill Company

"That," said Byrd, "is the Marquis de la Trouerie."

Cary bent closer. There could be no mistake. No mistake! And all Williamburg decried! The circle of beaus parted, rolled back at the newcomer's approach, and Anne's face lit up, startled and joyful, at one look which told it all to Cary, flashlike.

Oh, the pity of it! Jarret in his red coat saw; too, from the hall—saw her smiling, but not to his words, glowing, but not for him, and evil crept into his face till every feature seemed a sin.

"Sweet Sir Lobsenz!" said a lackadaisical voice behind him. "Peaceful as ever I see, and with uniform all unaltered. I faith, I warrant no redskin might outstrip you on the far Scioto."

"Not now, Master Freneau," said Jarret, breathing heavily. "Not now! Tonight I am occupied."

"Alas! Poor Scarlett! Is it not a raree show? Mayhap 'twill inspire me to an ode. Shall I sing a Trouerie cartered for the lists of love? See! To be gazed at so—is it not worth a prince's ransom? Oh, adorable!"

He paused, his mocking black eyes on the other's smoldering face. "Behold the discomfited!" he went on. "Think you Mistress Tillotson has aught for the spruce coxcombs with diamond shoe buckles and a macaroon elbow for snuff taking? Nay, nay! Nor for a king's spy with a rusted sword!"

Jarret for once had no retort. The outer door opened, and Foy and three soldiers in his majesty's uniform entered. Foy carried a folded paper.

The four entered the inner door and stepped on to the crowded floor together. Freneau and Jarret both pressed after them, the former in eager curiosity and the latter to slip into the background.

Anne stood with the marquis, her fingers on his arm, awaiting a minute. The fiddles were weaving the first meshes of the tune. She felt his arm suddenly tighten, his clasp take closer hold.

"What is it?" she asked. There was a bustle at the lower end of the room. He looked down at her. Something in his voice smote her. "Remember what you said to me at Greenway Court—what you said when we stood under the pines by Gladden Hall. If I should come to be mean and low and dishonorable before the world!"

"Look!" she cried. "They come this way. What can they want?"

"Listen—low before the world, but still loving—still loving you!"

An indefinable tremor came to her. The dancers were turning to stop. Colonel Tillotson had turned his head.

Foy, followed by the soldiers, had paused in front of them and was pointing to Armand. "Take him!" said he. The fiddles broke off with a screech.

The whole floor was stricken suddenly hushed, suddenly motionless. Anne could hear in Foy's throat his hoarse, savage breathing as the soldiers stepped forward. The assembly gasped, thunderstruck.

Then instantly there was an uproar. "Stop!" they insisted. A dozen dress swords, among them Freneau's, came out clicking. The ladies shrank, the gentlemen came up furious, muttering curses against the royal governor.

"What is the meaning of this outrage, sir?" Colonel Tillotson stood tall and threatening. "By what right lay you hands upon the person of the marquis?"

"The marquis!" said Foy. "I want no marquis. This is no more marquis than I am. I have here a warrant signed by the royal governor of Virginia for the seizure of the person of one Louis Armand, calling himself a marquis de la Trouerie, swimmer, impostor and conspirator against the peace of his majesty's colony. A fine spot he made of you, ladies and gentlemen! Will you come hence peaceably, to Armand, 'og shall I have you dragged?"

The hearers wavered. Mrs. Byrd had fixed her eyes on Anne's face, and in them was a tiny, feline glitter. Anne's hands were clasped about Armand's arm, and a spot of indignant red burned either cheek.

"Oh, infamous!" she said clearly. "Sir," asked Colonel Tillotson of Armand, his tone halting, "will you answer this?"

The young Frenchman's eyes were on Anne with a look ineffably tender, struggling with a sudden anguished shadow. White lines had fallen around his lips.

"Colonel Tillotson—gentlemen," said Foy, "there is not a particle of doubt, though the rascal has been clever enough to deceive even his excellency. Lack of proof has prevented his earlier exposure. This man, crossed on the same ship as the nobleman he represents himself to be. The passengers of the vessel knew him in his true character."

"'Twas the Two Sisters," Anne declared. Her eyes sought out Cary. "Why—why—you were on that ship! You left her in Hampton Roads. You must know. Tell him he lies!" Her tone was certain and defiant.

Cary's lips twitched. He looked at Armand, where he stood straight and quiet, his eyes on Anne's, and he seemed again to see that little form hurling itself against the brutal mate of the ship for the hurt of an outcast woman's heart. He struggled against a wish to cry out that the matter was not his business and fly. He dared not look at Anne, knowing what he must see there when he spoke.

"Mr. Cary 'was on the ship!" asked Foy distinctly. Anne drew a long breath, and a pal-lor suddenly struck her face. But she bent forward and laid her hand on Cary's arm. "Answer!" she bade him. "Who is he?"

Cary raised his hand. "He is a gentleman, and he is a brave man. Beyond I ask not!"

"Is he the Marquis de la Trouerie?" Anne's voice was clear and firm. "He was my friend!" cried Cary.

"Is he the Marquis de la Trouerie?" Cary's look turned to her. He saw the grayness in her cheek and the brave light in her eyes burned his heart cold. He looked from side to side—at the sneering laugh of Foy, at the calm, stern evenness of Colonel Tillotson, at Anne's face, now grown deadly white.

"Is he the Marquis de la Trouerie?" "Answer, my friend," he spoke. Cary's voice was husky as he spoke. "He is the marquis' secretary," said he.

The men standing nearest drew away from Armand at this. Anne had given a finishing start as if smitten by the flying terror of a bullet. It seemed to her that present, future, dreams, reality, heaven, earth, eternity, were all slipping away from her. Armand touched her hand gently, his face torn with conflict.

"You told me—if the man you loved"—The words failed. She raised her great eyes to his. "Are you the Marquis de la Trouerie?"

A whitening pain had conquered his face. "I am Louis Armand," he said as one whose heart is broken.

Anne closed her eyes and stood trembling, and in that moment he dropped his arms to his sides and turned to the waiting soldiers.

"Take him away!" said Foy. Seeing, Anne struggled pitiously to speak. She stood an instant with both hands stretched out after him; then she slipped back into Colonel Tillotson's arms.

The dance was breaking up as the door opened for Armand and his guards.

Then across the quiet struck discord. A far babble drew suddenly nearer. There was a din and a scurry of crying. Windows were opened.

"Haste!" fretted Foy. "To his excellency with the prisoner! Conolly has been taken. The alarm is out, and the town will rise!"

Gallants and dames issuing into the street in their ball finery, the ladies' rouged cheeks faded in the early light, saw a horseman who rode by bawling: "The powder! The powder!" he shouted.

"Dunmore's men have robbed the magazine!" And with the shout the great bell of the palace began tolling the summons calling all soldiers of the king to assemble.

"The governor has come to his senses at last," Mrs. Byrd said with satisfaction as she came out to her chair. "We shall presently see these precious rebels scampering to their holes. You must go, I suppose, Francis?"

"Aye, mother," he answered, his eyes bright with Anne's pain, and gave her his cheek to kiss.

But he did not go to the palace. The resignation of his commission went to the earl instead, and he himself hastened to the narrow house in Duke of Gloucester street which bore the name Alberti and the sign of the violin. It was long before he saw his mother again.

The volcano had burst. There is no small doubt from this time where any Virginian stands. By noon the army, where lies the man-of-war Magdalen, whither Dunmore's crafty agent Conolly has marched his marines with the powder rapped from the Williamsburg magazine, is black with threatening men.

Steadily numbers swell the crowd that chokes Duke of Gloucester street—city councilors, some in furtive delight at this loyal ruse, others stamping angrily, with powdered wigs askew and hands seeking the hilts of their dress swords; sober men mounting and dismounting horses; ladies, brilliant as ever, in red heeled shoes and clocked stockings, eager, excited, voluble. Here is all the aristocracy, the blue bloods of the valley planters, here are the duller garbed bourgeois of the inner counties.

The mob surges up and down past a square, prim house of glazed brick brought as ballast in the tobacco ships. It is fronted by a little garden, through which leads a path between exact flower beds of white bellis, love-in-a-mist and Canterbury bells, and here in his chair sits old Baron Fairfax, leaning his cane, listening to the tumult, knowing it means anger against the royal authority, but not bending his stubborn loyalty enough to pass beyond the gate. He is all a-quiver with rage at the seizure of the marquis.

"Fools!" he storms, grinding his teeth. "Idiot!" I will to the governor so soon as this cursed uproar ceases. The king shall hear of it!"

In his stronghold on Palace street the royal governor sits glowering, listening to the hum. He has the powder. Let the rebels rave. In the night he has converted his palace into a fort. Cannon look from the windows. Rows of muskets are lying on the floor to arm the household.

The council, hurriedly summoned, is met, in the library—a few smiling, Colonel Byrd warring, some indignant. At the indignant ones the governor rages like a wild beast, vowing that if violence be offered him by the people he will proclaim freedom to the slaves and lay Williamsburg in ashes.

The streets are in a boil. Betsy, who has wept an hour for Anne's sake, looks on from the Byrd porch, while her mother, having heard of the defection of Francis, watches red eyed behind her bedroom curtains.

The crowd has centered opposite in the wide square at the foot of Palace street. There are cries: "The palace! To the palace!" The mass moves restlessly as if meditating an attack. Slower counsel prevails. There is a hubbub of talk.

"Take him!"

Then a delegation is sent to the palace to demand the powder. Betsy sees them, four grave men, start from the crowd, go up the street, pass the guards, enter the door. There is a wait.

They return with their news. The wily earl has smoothed his rage, has heard them with courtesy. He has received the report that the slaves are about to rise in an adjoining county.

If the powder be needed at Williamsburg he pledges his honor it shall be returned "in half-an-hour." The delegation has seen the muskets. The crowd smolders—is unplunged.

The earl looks through an upper window and rubs his hands. These Virginians are no match for him.

Ah, the end is not yet. He has still to reckon with a sallow man who sits in the upper room at Alberti's.

This man is to ride like a whirlwind to New Castle, make a fiery appeal to the Hanover volunteers and to march back to Williamsburg at the head of 5,000 men with arms in their hands.

Before they reach the town a spark flies along the angry streets that turns them to a flame. It is the news of the battle of Lexington!

And when Patrick Henry marches into Duke of Gloucester street, John Murray, earl of Dunmore, you pay for that powder!

CHAPTER XIII.

THE shadow of Anne's grief hung heavy over Gladden Hall a few days later, where Henry and Colonel Tillotson sat alone in the library conversing. It was the eve of the former's departure for the second congress.

"Patrick," the colonel came out squarely, "what make you of this arrest of La Trouerie?"

"There is something wrong, colonel," he answered, "and 'twill out. Mark me, that young man in no charlatan. I would stake my soul he is not of low character. You are judge enough of human nature to know that."

"Cary was on the ship. Besides, he admitted it himself when he was seized at the Raleigh."

Henry leaped from his seat with an exclamation. "Granted he is not the marquis, the man is no impostor. I want nothing but that night at the King's Arms in Winchester to convince me of that. My God, you should have seen him fight Foy! Hang your marquis! Armand is a man, I tell you! What was there to gain by a vulgar masquerade?"

Rashleigh at this juncture entered, bearing a salver.

"Letter for Mrs. Henry," said he. "Mrs. Randolph's Ebenezer fotch it over arter him fum Williamsburg dis mawnin'."

"Why," said Henry, breaking the seal, "'tis from Dr. Franklin. Business of the colonies surely. Stay—you shall hear it."

To be continued.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; weakens vigor and causes nervousness soon disappears when the kidneys are out of order or the bladder is inflamed.

Kidney trouble becomes so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine smells like fish, or if when the child reaches the age when it should be a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder, and not a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is so remarkable. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent bottles, and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a course of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the best testimonials received from sufferers cured. It is written by Dr. J. C. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

BETHEL.

Memorial Day Exercises.

Memorial day was never noted in Bethel with greater interest by the old comrades and citizens than last Monday. Detachments were sent to all cemeteries, as usual, where comrades are buried, beside holding special exercises at Mason, West Bethel and Middle Intervale in the forenoon, and at Woodlawn cemetery and Mayville in the afternoon. The ladies of the Relief Corps and school children furnished the greater part of the exercises, which were fully appreciated by the old comrades.

Another interesting feature of the day was the appearance in line of about twenty-five Sons of Veterans. All these marked features of recognition of Memorial day are very pleasing to the old comrades, who are fast declining in ability and strength to render material assistance to these annual meetings, except to visit the different burial places to deposit a fresh wreath of evergreen and raise anew the Stars and Stripes.

H. A. Packard is working at the Prospect Inn this season.

A. M. True, Jerome Sanborn and Robert Howe were in Portland, Sunday and Monday.

Arthur Rice and wife of Norway were in town last Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. E. T. Russell and daughter and Mary Stanley of Brooklyn, N. Y., are at their summer home.

C. C. Bryant is going to erect a new and larger store on the corner so long occupied by his little grocery store.

Maj. G. A. Hastings arrived from Oregon, Tuesday morning. A sad homecoming indeed to find that his companion of many years has sickened and passed away in the few short weeks since he left town on his western trip.

The reception given to the students and teachers of Gould's academy, in honor of the senior class, by Rev. and Mrs. A. D. Colson, recently, was one of the most pleasing and successful social events of the season. The house was prettily decorated with the colors of the graduating class. Refreshments were served and a program consisting of literary selections and music was given. Practically the entire school was present.

William L. Grover, formerly of Bethel but late of Harrison, came to this place Tuesday a. m., with the body of his wife, Sarah (Kilborn), for burial in the old family lot in the Grover Hill cemetery. He was accompanied by his son, Leonard A., and wife of Sonington, Ct., and Emma Kilborn, a sister of the deceased. Mrs. Grover has been a great sufferer for many years of rheumatism, but the physician's certificate as to cause of death was tuberculosis.

Grover Hill.

Beautiful balmy weather. S. A. and E. P. Lyon were in town over Sunday.

Mrs. P. Wheeler has a girl to assist her during her convalescence.

Freeland Bennett has sold his Drew horse to Eliphlet Haynes of Auburn.

Mrs. Hetty Blake from Milan, N. H., is visiting relatives in town this week.

We learn that Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lyon, entertained guests at their wedding reception last Wednesday evening.

Middle Intervale.

Alace Carter is at home from Framingham, Mass.

Fifteen tons of ashes have been shipped from Berlin and used on the Carter farm.

Memorial exercises here and decoration of soldiers' graves, May 30th. We are glad to see some of the children take a part, but more glad to see the whole have a part appropriate for the occasion.

Mrs. Ellen P. Kimball has had the gravestones fixed in the old Parkard yard in Woodstock. Daniel Packard, the oldest, was a veteran soldier some years before the Civil War of 1861, the Revolutionary war it is said. Should not such graves have flags?

Rowe-Lane.

A very pretty home wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Rowe of Oxford, Sunday, May 29, at 1 p. m., when their daughter, Annie L., was united in marriage with Percy E. Lane of Webster, by Rev. Mr. Newport of Oxford.

There were many of their friends and relatives present, and they were the recipients of many useful and valuable presents, and received the congratulations and best wishes of all their friends, of whom they have many.

On Monday afternoon they departed under a shower of rice for their future home at Webster, where the groom carries on a fine farm and dairy business.

In Blossom-Time.

In blossom-time, sweet blossom-time!
The merry brooks ring tuneful rhyme,
The nesting birds make glad some time,
Where truant boys are wont to climb,
In blossom-time, sweet blossom-time.
In blossom-time, O, day too dear!
The air is laden with perfume sweet,
The robin sings her glad sweet,
The scholars live with restless feet,
In blossom-time, that day so fleet.

In blossom-time, on snowy wing,
The zephyrs to the blossoms sing,
And whistlings from the wood they bring,
And daffodils from the heart they fling,
In blossom-time, on snowy wing,
In blossom-time of purest day,
A potent power to make men pray
Shows to the heart a better way
That ever in the right would stay,
In blossom-time, that purest day,
In blossom-time, O, happy youth!
To you all nature wings the truth
On rosy pinions, light forsooth,
This nature-lesson of all truth
In blossom-time, sweet days of youth.

Jack Henderson's Kite.

When all of Jack Henderson's Fourth of July burns had been his father brought him home a box kite so big that he could hardly fly it. Jack complained that the kite pulled so hard that even when he did succeed in getting it up it tired him to hold it.

One day when Jack had the kite out in the park and was flying it in a strong wind he sat down on the backboard of a friend to rest awhile, and what do you suppose happened? While Jack still held the string the backboard began to move.

Jack sat still to see what was happening, and before he knew it the backboard was going at a good rate pulled along by the kite. It happened that the wind was blowing straight up the road, and Jack had a good ride.

Of course he tried it again, and it was not long before all the boys around were taking rides in this way. They found they could tie the kite string fast to the front of the backboard, and this enabled them to use both hands to steer with. They also found that even when the wind was not blowing exactly in the direction in which they wanted to go they could still make the kite do the work, and when they tried it they found that this was so.

Jack's big brother, who is too old to play with kites, or supposed to be, because he goes to the high school and studies all about geometry and physics, came out to try the ride, and said that even when the wind was forty-five degrees away from the direction in which they wanted the kite to do the work, they could still make the kite do the work, and when they tried it they found that this was so.

When they came to the end of the ride, however, there was always trouble. It was hard to stop.

Once they came to a sudden stop by running up against the curb. The string broke, and the kite came near being lost.

Several times they upset the backboard. Some of these accidents have pened because it was so hard to steer that they did not have time for anything else.

At last they found a way to tie the string to the front of the backboard in such a way that it could be untied instantly. Then when they were near the end of the run they would take the string in their hands and pull it in for some distance. Then when they came almost to the place where they wanted to stop they would let out some of the string. This would make the kite stop pulling long enough for them to get out of the backboard.

How Mr. Carnegie Won a Race.

When Andrew Carnegie's parents first came to America from Scotland they went to East Liverpool, O., to stay with some relatives. Their son was about fourteen years old at the time and was an object of considerable interest to the boys of the neighborhood. He made many friends among them, and after the family had moved to Allegheny, Pa., often returned to East Liverpool to visit some of his playmates.

On one occasion, when he was sixteen years old, he went with his cousin to visit William and Michael Fisher, who lived on a farm about half a mile from the town. The four boys spent some time in examining the pet rabbits and other objects of interest, and at length, when they were all standing at the top of a grassy slope, William Fisher challenged Carnegie to a foot race. "Well," said Andrew, "you're a lot taller than I am and your legs are longer, and I believe you can beat me, but I'll race you just the same."

The two boys started, and, as Andrew had foreseen, the Fisher boy easily outran him. The little Scotchman was by no means discouraged because the chances seemed all against him, but kept running. About half way down the slope the Fisher boy stopped, considering it useless to run farther. To his surprise Carnegie continued on apace and arrived at the bottom far ahead of him. "That's not fair," said Fisher, "because I stopped."

"Yes, I knew you'd stop," said Carnegie in reply, "and that's the reason I kept on running. Have you ever heard the fable of the turtle and the hare?"—Success.

Why the Charge Against Ephraim Was Dismissed.

EPHRAIM was a man of importance, being an elder in the Baptist church and much given to exhortation, prayer and song. His cabin was the scene of many a "revival," and the powerful prayers offered by Ephraim on these occasions were the wonder and admiration of the colored population.

With all his religious ardor, however, there were times when the pleasures of the world appealed strongly to him. Seeing him approach one morning with downcast eyes and an air of general dejection, Colonel Snead accosted him thus:

"Hello, Eph! You look as if you were going to your own funeral. What's the matter?"

"Well, kumel, I feels bad, suh," replied Eph. "De 'casion an' a serious one, suh. You know de young folks done hab a party at Nick Finney's de udder night, an' as I's been a-wassin' in pray'r fer de salvation ob Nick's soul fer a pow'ful long time I done thought I'd 'cept de invitation an' go, an' maybe I mout drop a word or two dat would tek his heart. But dey was mighty leetle chance ter talk ter Nick 'bout 'ligion, fer dat nigger will dance whenever he heah a fiddle. Well, suh, I went, an' now dey claims as how I was a-dancin', an' I's ter be tried terday, an' put outen de chu'ch."

"Well, Eph, that's pretty hard luck, but they ought to know that an elder of your standing would not indulge in anything so worldly as dancing," replied the colonel, with a twinkle in his eye, well knowing that Eph's besetting sin was not tripping the light fantastic.

"I hopes so, kumel, I hopes so," rejoined Eph in a tone of utter despair as he trudged on toward the town.

Late the same afternoon Colonel Snead heard a voice singing lustily, "It's gvine ter jine de band," and recognizing Eph he asked:

"How did de trial go, Eph?"

"Dey cl'ard me, kumel, bress de Lawd! Dey cl'ard me!"

"Clear'd you, did they? That's good. Then you proved you'd not been dancing?" said the colonel.

"No, suh, kumel; dey proved it on me all right, but dey 'lowed I was drunk an' didn't know what I was doin', so dey cl'ard me, kumel, bress de Lawd!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

BETHEL.

Memorial Day Exercises.

Memorial day was never noted in Bethel with greater interest by the old comrades and citizens than last Monday. Detachments were sent to all cemeteries, as usual, where comrades are buried, beside holding special exercises at Mason, West Bethel and Middle Intervale in the forenoon, and at Woodlawn cemetery and Mayville in the afternoon. The ladies of the Relief Corps and school children furnished the greater part of the exercises, which were fully appreciated by the old comrades.

Another interesting feature of the day was the appearance in line of about twenty-five Sons of Veterans. All these marked features of recognition of Memorial day are very pleasing to the old comrades, who are fast declining in ability and strength to render material assistance to these annual meetings, except to visit the different burial places to deposit a fresh wreath of evergreen and raise anew the Stars and Stripes.

H. A. Packard is working at the Prospect Inn this season.

A. M. True, Jerome Sanborn and Robert Howe were in Portland, Sunday and Monday.

Arthur Rice and wife of Norway were in town last Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. E. T. Russell and daughter and Mary Stanley of Brooklyn, N. Y., are at their summer home.

C. C. Bryant is going to erect a new and larger store on the corner so long occupied by his little grocery store.

Maj. G. A. Hastings arrived from Oregon, Tuesday morning. A sad homecoming indeed to find that his companion of many years has been killed and passed away in the few short weeks since he left town on his western trip.

The reception given to the students and teachers of Gould's academy, in honor of the senior class, by Rev. and Mrs. A. D. Olson, recently, was one of the most pleasing and successful social events of the season. The house was prettily decorated with the colors of the graduating class. Refreshments were served and a program consisting of literary selections and music was given. Practically the entire school was present.

GROVER HILL.

Beautiful balmy weather.

S. A. and E. P. Lyon were in town over Sunday.

Mrs. P. Wheeler has a girl to assist her during her convalescence.

Freeland Bennett has sold his Drew horse to Elsie Haynes of Auburn.

Mrs. Betty Blake from Milan, N. H. is visiting relatives in town this week.

We learn that Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lyon, entertained guests at their wedding reception last Wednesday evening.

Middle Intervale.

Alace Carter is at home from Framingham, Mass.

Fifteen tons of ashes have been shipped from Berlin and used on the Carter farm.

Memorial exercises here and decoration of soldiers' graves, May 30th. We are glad to see some of the children take a part, but more glad to see the whole have a part appropriate for the occasion.

Mrs. Ellen P. Kimball has had the gravestones fixed in the old Parkard yard in Woodstock. Daniel Packard, the oldest, was a veteran soldier some years before the Civil War of 1861, the Revolutionary war it is said. Should not such graves have flags?

Rove-Lane.

A very pretty home wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Rove of Oxford, Sunday, May 29, at 1 p. m., when their daughter, Annie L., was united in marriage with Percy E. Lane of Webster, by Rev. Mr. Newport of Oxford.

There were many of their friends and relatives present, and they were the recipients of many useful and valuable presents, and received the congratulations and best wishes of all their friends, of whom they have many.

On Monday afternoon they departed under a shower of rice for their future home at Webster, where the groom carries on a fine farm and dairy business.

In Blossom-Time.

In blossom-time, sweet blossom-time!
The merry brooks ring tinnerly rhyme,
The nesting birds make gladdest melody,
Where truant boys are wont to climb.
In blossom-time, sweet blossom-time,
The air is laden with perfume sweet,
The robin sings her glad sweet,
The scholar reads with restless feet.
In blossom-time, that day so sweet.
In blossom-time, on snowy wing,
The zephyrs to the blossoms sing,
And dallies from the heart they bring,
In blossom-time, on snowy wing,
A potent power to make men pray
Shows to the heart a better way
That ever in the right would stay.
In blossom-time, that purest day,
In blossom-time, O happy youth!
To you all nature wings the truth
On rosy pinions, light forsooth,
This nature-lesson of all truth,
In blossom-time, sweet days of youth.

Jack Henderson's

Kite

*****

When all of Jack Henderson's fourth of July burns had healed his father brought him home a box kite so big that he could hardly fly it.

Jack complained that the kite pulled so hard that even when he did succeed in getting it up it tired him to hold it.

One day when Jack had the kite out in the park and was flying it in a strong wind he sat down on the backboard of a friend to rest awhile, and what do you suppose happened? While Jack still held the string the backboard began to move.

Jack sat still to see what was happening, and before he knew it the backboard was going at a good rate, pulled along by the kite. It happened that the wind was blowing straight up the road, and Jack had a good ride.

Of course he tried it again, and it was not long before all the boys around were taking rides in this way. They found they could tie the kite string fast to the front of the backboard, and this enabled them to use both hands to steer with. They also found that even when the wind was not blowing exactly in the direction in which they wanted to go they could still make the kite pull the backboard, provided the difference in direction was not too great.

Jack's big brother, who is too old to play with kites, or supposed to be, because he goes to the high school and studies all about geometry and physics, came out to try the ride, and said that even when the wind was forty-five degrees away from the direction in which they wanted the kite to do the work, and when they tried it they found that this was so.

When they came to the end of the ride, however, there was always trouble. It was hard to stop.

Once they came to a sudden stop by running up against the curb. The string broke, and the kite came near being lost.

Several times they upset the backboard. Some of these accidents happened because it was so hard to steer that they did not have time for anything else.

At last they found a way to tie the string to the front of the backboard in such a way that it could be untied instantly. Then when they were near the end of the run they would take the string in their hands and pull it in for some distance. Then when they came almost to the place where they wanted to stop they would let out some of the string. This would make the kite stop pulling long enough for them to get out of the backboard.

How Mr. Carnegie Won a Race.

When Andrew Carnegie's parents first came to America from Scotland they went to East Liverpool, O., to stay with some relatives. Their son was about fourteen years old at the time and was an object of considerable interest to the boys of the neighborhood. He made many friends among them, and after the family had moved to Allegheny, Pa., often returned to East Liverpool to visit some of his playmates.

On one occasion, when he was sixteen years old, he went with his cousin to visit William and Michael Fisher, who lived on a farm about half a mile from the town. The four boys spent some time in examining the pet rabbits and other objects of interest, and at length, when they were all standing at the top of a grassy slope, William Fisher challenged Carnegie to a foot race. "Well," said Andrew, "you're a lot taller than I am and your legs are longer, and I believe you can beat me, but I'll race you just the same."

The two boys started, and, as Andrew had foreseen, the Fisher boy easily outran him. The little Scotchman was by no means discouraged because the chances seemed all against him, but kept running. About half way down the slope the Fisher boy stopped, considering it useless to run farther. To his surprise Carnegie continued at pace and arrived at the bottom far ahead of him. "That's not fair," said Fisher, "because I stopped."

"Yes, I knew you'd stop," said Carnegie in reply, "and that's the reason I kept on running. Have you ever heard the fable of the turtle and the hare?"—Success.

Why the Charge Against Ephraim Was Dismissed

EPHRAIM was a man of importance, being an elder in the Baptist church and much given to exhortation, prayer and song. His cabin was the scene of many a "revival," and the powerful prayers offered by Ephraim on these occasions were the wonder and admiration of the colored population.

With all his religious ardor, however, there were times when the pleasures of the world appealed strongly to him. Seeing him approach one morning with downcast eyes and an air of general dejection, Colonel Sneed accosted him thus:

"Hello, Eph! You look as if you were going to your own funeral. What's the matter?"

"Well, kunnel, I feels bad, suh," replied Eph. "De 'casion am a serious one, suh. You know de young folks done hab a party at Nick Finney's de under night, an' as I's been a-wrastlin' in pray'r fer de salvation ob Nick's soul fer a pow'ful long time I done thought I'd 'cept de invitation an' go, an' maybe I mout drap a word or two dat would tech his heart. But dey was mighty leech chance ter talk ter Nick 'bout 'ligion, fer dat nigger will dance whenever he heah a fiddle. Well, suh, I went, an' now dey claims as how I was a-dancin', an' I's ter be tried terday an' put outen de chu'ch."

"Well, Eph, that's pretty hard luck, but they ought to know that an elder of your standing would not indulge in anything so worldly as dancing," replied the colonel, with a twinkle in his eye, well knowing that Eph's besetting sin was not tripping the light fantastic.

"I hopes so, kunnel, I hopes so," rejoined Eph in a tone of utter despair as he trudged on toward the town.

Late the same afternoon Colonel Sneed heard voice singing lustily, "It's gwine ter jine de band," and recognizing Eph he asked:

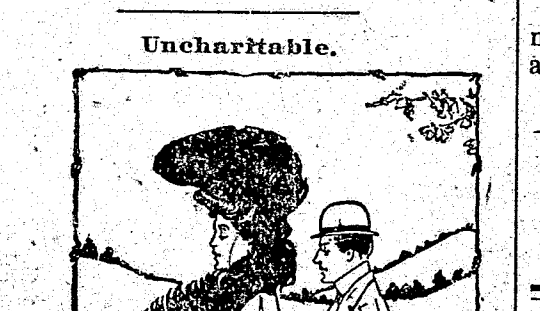

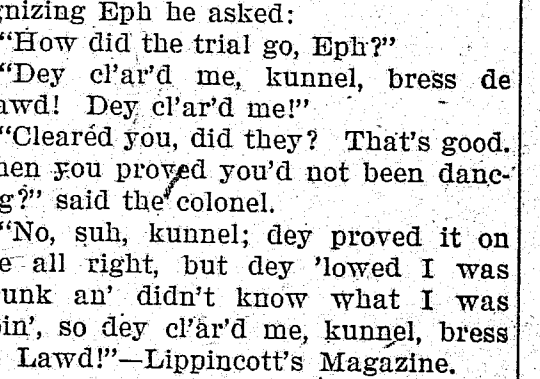

"How did the trial go, Eph?"

"Dey cl'ard me, kunnel, bress de Lawd! Dey cl'ard me!"

"Clear'd you, did they? That's good. Then you proved you'd not been dancing?" said the colonel.

"No, suh, kunnel; dey proved it on me all right, but dey 'lowed I was drunk an' didn't know what I was doin', so dey cl'ard me, kunnel, bress de Lawd!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

May 28th was Memorial day with Canton Grange. G. A. R. and Relief Corps were invited to dinner. In the afternoon the hall was opened to the public. Richardson's orchestra furnished music, also the Grange choir sang some very appropriate pieces. An eloquent address was given by Rev. J. H. Little (a soldier boy). Readings by Mrs. Helen Eastman and Mrs. Mattie Child and Ella Walker. Remarks by several of the Post and Relief Corps.

WEST PARIS.

Memorial Day.

Memorial Day was bright and clear as one could wish. The forenoon train brought a good company of G. A. R. and Spanish War boys accompanied by the ladies of the W. R. C. Appropriate exercises were held at the cemetery, where fifteen soldiers' graves were decorated with wreaths, flowers and a flag. A touching address was given by F. L. Wyman, followed by Rev. Dr. Brooks of South Paris, prayer by Rev. D. F. Nelson, singing by a mixed quartette and by the school children.

A bountiful dinner was served at Centennial Hall. At 2 p. m. the exercises were resumed at Dunham's Hall, which was crowded to its utmost capacity. The school children marched around the hall and to their seats. Rev. H. A. Clifton of South Paris offered prayer. Well chosen words of cordial welcome were given by Mrs. C. Everett Chase and responded to by Adjt. Holster. Next was read Lincoln's address at Gettysburg.

A pretty flag drill was given by eight young girls in which they sweetly sang of '61' was ably aided by Comrade Wyman's daughter, Mrs. W. H. Lurvey, which received hearty applause. Hon. James S. Wright spoke a few words outlining the causes of the Civil War. He was followed by the principal speaker of the day, Rev. J. H. Little, who gave a very vivid picture of the plan and battle of Gettysburg. The description was the more forceful for being given by one who was a participant in the battle. He was heartily applauded.

Excellent music was furnished by a mixed quartette consisting of Mrs. F. S. Farnum, Mrs. S. T. White, R. N. Stetson and C. Everett Chase; Jennie M. Brown, organist. Closing prayer by Dr. Brooks. The entire program was in charge of Capt. H. N. Bolster, and was a day of interest and pleasure which was appreciated by the people of our community.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Horace Sanborn was up from Portland over Sunday.

Mrs. F. E. Fisk of Gorham, N. H., recently visited in Norway.

O. A. Lovering, Fore street, has an Eastern telephone, call 7-8.

George F. Hathaway has moved into his new home on Pleasant street.

James Danforth has sold his cottage on the summit of Pike's hill to Fred Morse.

Ralph L. Trask went to Haines' Landing, Wednesday of last week, and Capt. J. W. Nash returned, Saturday.

Mrs. Frank Barker of Bath came Saturday to spend a couple weeks with her parents, Otto Schnuer and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Gershom P. Bickford and little son Percival of Berlin, N. H., spent Sunday and Memorial day at Round Pond.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Woodbury and son, Frederick G., are enjoying an outing in Stoneham, Mrs. Woodbury's girlhood home.

N. H. Hall, of Portland, a conductor on the B. and M. Railroad and Miss St. Clair have been visiting friends in this vicinity and stopping at the Porter cottage.

Elmer Howe of Hallowell, was in Norway, Saturday. Mr. Howe has been guided at the Lakes quite a good deal, though for the past two years he has not been at the Lakes.

C. A. Frost of North Norway has been working for C. D. Morse at Waterford, who is putting another story on to the Maxfield house. This house was recently bought by Dr. Simpson and is being fixed over and an ell built on it.

Trustees Glad They Paid More.

The Trustees of Fair Ground, Cobleskill, N. Y., were glad to pay 15 cents a gallon more for Devos; and no wonder. Two other paint agents said it would take 150 gallons of their paint to cover the buildings.

The Devos agent put it at 125 or less. It took 115.

Devos saved them 35 gallons of paint and painting (worth $4 to $5 a gallon, as the painting costs two or three times as much as the paint) less 15 cents a gallon on 115 gallons. Say $140.

That's how to count the cost of paint. The cost of putting it on is $3 or $4 a gallon. You see what that means. Go by Devos.

F. P. STONE.

WEST MINOT.

Lemont Allen is out of town for a few days.

Henry Allen is visiting friends in Hermon.

Austin Campbell lost one of his horses Sunday.

L. T. Millett and wife were in Lewiston, Saturday.

A. F. Cloutier of Buckfield was in the place, Sunday.

H. W. Bearce and family spent Sunday at H. C. Howard's.

Eva DeCosta returned, Friday, to her home at Groveton, N. H.

George Beam and wife of Paris were at F. E. Rowe's, Thursday.

A. O. Howard of Auburn was at his mother's, Sunday and Monday.

W. E. Kegan of Lewiston was at L. P. York's a few days last week.

Grace Atwood of Auburn spent Sunday at her father's, S. M. Atwood's.

F. E. Rowe and wife are at their cottage at Bailey's Island for a few days.

Mr. Fulsom and daughter Alice of Lewiston spent the Sabbath at L. P. York's.

Mrs. Rose Pike went to Groveton, N. H., Saturday, to visit her grandson, Phil Campbell.

Ed. Cloutier and wife spent Sunday at Welchville the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hunting.

Lottie Young has finished work for A. M. Beane and has gone to work for Henry Phillips.

Mrs. Ed. Leach of Mechanic Falls spent a few days last week at her father's, L. Keene's.

Mr. and Mrs. Rich of Auburn were the guests of W. J. Crooker and wife, Saturday and Sunday.

Edward Bonney, wife and son Henry of Auburn were the guests of relatives, Saturday night and Sunday.

Children's night was observed in the Grange, Saturday evening. The hall was well filled and all went home feeling that the evening had been well spent and wishing that children's night came oftener. Ice cream and cake were served to the children.

Memorial Day Services.

Memorial Sunday.

There was an excellent turnout of the Grand Army and Relief Corps at the service, Sunday morning, at the Methodist church, and with the regular congregation and visiting friends filled the church. The audience room was neatly trimmed with flags, and in front of the pulpit was a most beautiful arrangement of potted plants. The seats of the Post and Corps were marked with a wreath and flag. Specially good music was given by the choir, and the hymns were patriotic. Prayer was offered by Rev. J. E. Budden.

Rev. C. A. Brooks took texts from 2 Chron. xiv, 11 and Judges v, 9, and briefly sketched the causes of the war and of secession. In a most affecting manner he mentioned some of the greater battles and the sufferings, in the prison pens of the South. The results of the war—freedom, unity of the nation, pre-eminence of the land were shown.

We need loyalty now, we need men true, righteous, devoted in the state and nation. Problems now need the energy of wise and devoted men. The G. A. R. and Relief Corps should educate the young to have true and lofty devotion to the country and be ready to sacrifice for its sake. The church needs men of character, true and loyal men. Be true to God; keep His commandments.

Monday's Exercises.

At 9:20 the line of parade which had formed in front of G. A. R. hall, started in the following order:

Marchal, W. C. Cole.
Norway Concert Band, 17 pieces.
Co. D, N. G. S. M., 23 men.
Lieut. F. A. Hayden commanding.
Harry East Post, 23 men.
D. R. Jordan, commanding.

The Relief Corps and many of the veterans were given by Pine Grove Cemetery, where a short service consisting of music by the band, prayer, reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address and the Memorial day order of national commander John S. Black, by Rev. E. S. Cotton, and the decoration of the graves of fallen comrades. A squad of the T. Bartlett command of Spanish War Veterans decorated the graves of their former comrades.

The soldiers graves at Rustfield cemetery were decorated with appropriate exercises, on their return. Prayer and a few remarks were made by Rev. B. S. Rideout.

Dinner was served in G. A. R. hall at noon.

At 1:30 the Post and Relief Corps marched to the opera house where the address was given by Hon. Geo. O. Bisbee of Rumford Falls. Commander Columbus Richardson presided, and on the platform also were Rev. Messrs. C. A. Brooks, E. S. Cotton and B. S. Rideout.

The exercises opened with a solo by E. L. Horne. Other music was a duet by Mrs. Kimball and Mr. Horne and two solos by Mrs. Kimball. Prayer was offered by Rev. C. A. Brooks.

Comrade Bisbee of John E. Colby Post was introduced as a veteran of the 16th Maine. He began with a tribute to Norway's military spirit, that it leads the country in military interest. At the time of the war it had the same distinction that it now has of being the only Oxford county town having an equipped and thoroughly trained military company. He mentioned such men as Beal, Virgin and Rust.

He traced the origin and meaning of Memorial day, founded in 1868. It is not a day of pomp but of solemn remembrance. The strained political condition before the war, which caused the conflict, and the stirring scenes of it were briefly mentioned. The speaker cited the gain in population, valuations and similar signs of progress since '61. The Grand Army men compare favorably with every other man industrially and morally. Grand Army men have occupied the highest place in the nation, the highest positions in politics and business.

The speaker paid a tribute to the flag, and told of his joy on seeing it when released after an 18 months imprisonment in Libby prison and Columbia, S. C.

The meaning of the flag, safety, liberty, justice were exemplified. The G. A. R. will never be forgotten, but honor and love will be their portion, and when they pass away willing hands will continue their work.

BOLSTER'S MILLS.

William Jones has gone to Auburn to work.

Fred Haskell of Melrose, Mass., is visiting relatives in this place.

Lewis Weston has been stopping a few days with his brother, Fred Weston.

Ralph Wright of Gorham, N. H., has recently visited his brother, Dr. E. A. Wright.

Our new pastor, Rev. D. O. Tuttle, gave a very excellent discourse last Sabbath founded upon the text, 2 Peter, 3:1. We prophesy that Mr. Tuttle is the right man in the right place.

The members of the Loyal Temperance Legion held a meeting at the schoolroom last Friday afternoon. The recitations and songs by the children were greatly enjoyed by the visitors present. This is a branch of work conducted by the W. C. T. U., and is supervised by Lucy E. Dorman, who so well understands how to train the children.

NEWRY.

Ernest Allen is visiting J. S. Allen this week.

Mrs. Ramsell's father and mother are visiting her.

Harry Bailey and wife are visiting at A. E. Bailey's.

Mrs. W. F. Small is visiting relatives in Portland this week.

Mrs. Ryerson has a man at work in her lot at the cemetery.

There will be a dance at the hall at Newry Corner, June 10th.

Mrs. Pennock from Wilson's Mills is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Fred Taylor.

Otis Baker, wife and two children from Massachusetts are visiting at J. S. Allen's.

HARRISON.

Lakeside Grange of Harrison is in a very flourishing condition. They have about 80 members.

A party of six from this village have put in a week at the Rangelys. They report good success fishing.

P. F. Bailey, formerly of Harrison, but for the past six months of Portland, has accepted a position as bookkeeper at the Poland Spring House, which opens June 1st.

Mr. Hibbard, Boston's postmaster, with a few friends is stopping at the Elm House for a short time. Mr. Hibbard has put in a few days each spring for several years past in Crystal and Long lakes for salmon. This spring the fishing in Crystal lake has been quite good. Quite a number of salmon, togue and pickerel have been taken.

DENMARK.

Perley Rankin is painting Ezra Davis' house.

Aldana Merrifield is still confined to the house.

Mrs. Geo. Palmer is much better of her grip trouble.

Mrs. Geo. Trumbull is slowly gaining from her sick spell.

Sarah Purlington has been to Lovell to see her sister Edie, who is stopping there.

Our minister, Rev. G. J. Palmer's mother is to visit him from Aroostook county.

Elwood Pingree has hauled a lot of dirt to raise the driveway at A. H. Witham's store.

George Webb died Tuesday afternoon, May 24th, aged 55 years. He leaves a wife and one son.

Rev. Geo. J. Palmer preached the Memorial sermon, the 29th, at East Denmark M. E. church.

George Perham and Richard Gustin, Henry Gustin's boy, went to Massachusetts, Monday, for the summer.

Mrs. Sarah McKusick and Mrs. Angie Poor went to Biddeford to attend the Grand Chapter of the Eastern Star.

The ladies aid met Thursday, May 26th, afternoon and evening, with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. J. Palmer at the parsonage.

Bert Jordan got quite badly hurt in the mill. The flesh of his leg was burst in two places. Eddie Breen took his place in the mill and Monday he sawed his hand and had to have it dressed by the doctor.

Summer company begins to come to town.

The arranged services for Memorial day are postponed till next Sabbath, June 5th.

Our pastor attended the funeral of Seth Berry at Sandy Creek last Sabbath afternoon.

Willis Sanborn and wife of Springvale came, Friday, to visit his mother, brothers and sisters.

Arthur Pendexter came up from Portland last week and is spending several days at home fishing, etc.

Mrs. Palmer, the mother of Rev. Geo. J. Palmer, came from Bangor to visit today. She is an old lady between 70 and 80 years old.

The funeral of Geo. Webb was Friday forenoon at the house attended by the pastor of the M. E. church, and the remains were taken to Cornish and interred in the family lot by A. P. Copp, undertaker of Cornish, who came for them.

New Targets.

Local National Guardsmen Will Be Much Interested in Them.

Hitherto the Guard has used the Blunt or elliptical target. Experiments with the old Springfield rifle showed that a number of shots fired at rest made a vertical elliptical group on the target, therefore the bullseye and other divisions of the target were made in an elliptical form to offset this variation. With the Krag's military rifle, which has a circular bullet, hence the new targets have a round bullseye and rings.

The marksmen will find the new target somewhat harder by reason of the reduction from the ellipses to the circles. Practically the round bullseye is no harder with the Krag than the elliptical is with the Springfield. The new targets are thus described:

Targets A—The short range targets, used for 200 and 300 yards, and for dismounted pistol practice, is a rectangle 6 feet high by 4 wide; black circular bullseye 8 inches diameter; value of hit, 5; center ring, 56 inches diameter; value of hit, 4; inner ring, 46 inches diameter; value of hit, 3; outer, remainder of target, value of hit, 2. A ricochet has the value as a direct hit.

Targets B—The mid-range target, used for 500 and 600 yards, is a square six feet on a side; black circular bullseye, 20 inches diameter; center ring, 37 inches diameter; inner ring, 53 inches diameter; outer, remainder of target. Value of hits, same as on target A.

Targets C—The long range target, used for 800 and 1,000 yards, is a rectangle 6 feet high and 12 feet wide; circular bullseye, 36 inches diameter; center ring, 54 inches diameter; inner space outside of center ring bounded by vertical lines 3 feet from each end of target; outer, remainder of target. Value of hits, same as on target A.

Target G—Group skirmish targets. Composed of the two figure targets "D" and "E" placed in line, forming a group. The kneeling figure on the military right, distance between the centers of figures being one yard. Value of hits, direct or ricochet, on lying figure, 5; on kneeling figure, 4. Hits on or within the steel frame only count.

CASCO.

A Big Raft.

C. B. Mayberry has floated the biggest raft of logs across Lake Thompson ever carried on any waters in this part of the State. It contained 1200 M and covered fifteen acres of surface. They started the raft at 3 a. m. and arrived at Oxford at 4 p. m., a distance of seven miles. The job was done by Charles Berry and Woodbury Plummer of Raymond with three men.

Mrs. Wm. J. Cook has gone to Deering on a short visit.

Chas. Thompson of Rickers was at home over Sunday.

Mrs. E. A. Barton has so far recovered as to be able to ride out.

Maud Burgess of E. L. H. S., Auburn, spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents.

Laville Curtis is at work for Mr. Page on the stock farm.

Mrs. S. A. Hall has gone to New Hampshire for a three week's visit among her relatives.

Mae E. Hancock has returned from Emerson's school of Oratory for her summer vacation.

Simon Grover and family are moving into the house which he recently bought of S. O. Hancock.

Levi Dingley lost a valuable year old cow May 20th. Finding it in the pasture with a broken leg, he had to kill it.

A few of the Sunday school members of this place attended the convention of the Pleasant Pond S. S. A. at Raymond village May 14th.

The "Twentieth Century Home" invites its readers to prepare a list of the World's 500 Best Books. For the best list submitted, prizes amounting to $300 are offered. This is an item of interest for all those who are fond of books and know something about them. The details of the competition are given in the June issue of this new and very successful magazine.

Children's Corner.

Bethel, Me., May 24, 1904.

DEAR EDITOR:—I am going to send you another story which is true.

A True Story About a Robin.

There was once a little girl whose name is Louise. She was a great lover of birds. Once this little girl and her brother that was younger, whose name is Greenleaf, was in an apple orchard playing, and they happened to find a robin's nest with little blue eggs in it, but no birdies. And so they watched the nest every day, until at last they found that they had hatched, and soon after, Louise and her little brother took one of the robins home and Greenleaf made a cage for it and then they put the robin in it. Louise fed it and took as good care as she knew how. At last the robin would fly on her shoulder and let her put berries in its mouth.

One day this young robin died. Louise felt very bad; she went to her mother crying and told her her bird was dead. Her mother replied, "It will learn you better than to take another young robin from its mother."

Her brother is living in the western part of New York, and is a carpenter. The cage was the first of his carpenter work.

And now this girl has grown to womanhood and is still living in one of the New England states. She is still a lover of robins, and every day looks at one hopping in the dooryard it reminds her of her first grief. And here are some thoughts about her robin.

Thoughts of My Robin.

"A robin hopping in our yard
Reminds me of an early grief
When robin tamed was dear to me
But for death a sweet relief.

"I loved this bird then as I thought
I never could love a thing again;
And when it died I truly said,
"My heart indeed is full of pain."

"But now I let the birds go free
To help my wandering fellowmen
To seek a home beyond the tomb,
And leave a wandering life of sin.

"And like the birds that cheer us here,
I let them fly to smooth our life's path,
And thus prepared while here on earth
For longer flights beyond the tomb."

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

WHEREAS, a Divine Providence has seen fit to remove from our association our fellow laborer, John F. Brown, Jr.

WHEREAS, the relation held with him in this society one of our charter members makes it eminently fitting that we record our affection of him; therefore be it

Resolved, that the Grange has lost a worthy and valued member and the community a respected citizen, and though we mourn the loss of our departed brother, who is the first whose death has claimed from our circle, the Supreme Master, knowing that his will is his law.

Resolved, that we extend our sincerest sympathy to the family thus left without a father, to the care and comfort of the Divine Father, who doeth all things well.

Resolved, that in respect for the departed brother, our charters be changed to maintain the memory of him, and that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our records, a copy sent to the bereaved family, and a copy sent to the local paper for publication.

Upton, May 31, 1904.

During the months of July and August of last year, The Boston Traveler sent hundreds of children from Boston to the country, where they romped and played in the fields, enjoying to their utmost the fresh air and sunshine and pure food of the farms. Country homes in all parts of New England were opened to this deserving philanthropy, and the good that was accomplished is incalculable.

It is proposed this year to continue this work on a much larger scale. More homes will be opened and more children will be made happy. Can not some readers of this paper help in the work by caring for a child for a week during July or August? The Traveler will see to it that the little ones are clean and orderly and will pay all preliminary expenses and railroad fare.

As a slight token of appreciation, The Traveler will be sent you year free of charge to the family entering the small guests. Address, Outing Department, The Boston Traveler, Boston, Mass.

The Joker.

Pete is a joker. He said last year while working so far away that he often met himself coming home.

Mrs. Skillings has gone to Biddeford to visit friends.
Allen Irish of Bath visited his parents
over the Sabbath.

A. E. Russell and wife of Lewiston were in town, Saturday.
Eugene Chaffin recently saw two foxes
one of which was black.

Howard Holmes returned to his home in Auburn, Tuesday. Mrs. H. is to remain a while.

Orestes Bryant of Auburn was in town Saturday, trafficking in horses. Horse flesh is in good demand this spring.

Dr. Heald has brought in some good catches of trout, some weighing a pound and one 1 1/2 pounds. Ed. Phinney had a basket of beauties, Monday.

Parties from Auburn who have recently been in town are George Merrill, wife and daughter, Howard Holmes and wife,
James Stover and wife, Mrs. Mary
Briery and Edgar Vose.

Albinas Bicknell of Hebron was along Memorial day. He is gray and 70, and he seemed to think he could floor me at collar and elbow. Well, he has the advantage in life, where my advantage was in being 5 years his senior. I'll not press the matter.

Rev. D. W. Athearn gave the Sunday
Memorial address at the Baptist church, which all say was very fine. May 30th, at Nezhinot hall Rev. Mr. Fisher addressed Fessenden Post and the citizens generally. Music was interspersed and exercised by the children were pleasing features.

A curious coincidence occurred Memorial day as A. G. Packard and myself were sitting on a dry goods box whittling, Yankee fashion. It was this, that it was the 77th anniversary of his birth and the 40th of my marriage, and it has been made a holiday. Yes, I took my wife to Mrs. Chas. Giles' ice cream rooms to celebrate the event, and C. H.
Prinice did the polite thing for Addison
G. Mrs. Giles' ice cream was in good demand.

DENMARK.

H. W. Evans has been to Worcester and Lowell on business.

A goodly number of our people attended memorial services at Brownfield.
Mrs. Belle M. Smith came from Massachusetts the 29th. She has spent the winter in Worcester and Lowell.

Willard McKusick will soon start a fruit and grocery team to run three trips
a week in this and adjoining towns.

The Congregational circle met at the parsonage, the 26th. Some 70 were present and all enjoyed the evening's entertainment.

Church Affairs.

The Congregationalist church had their annual roll call and dinner, Thursday, May 28. There were about 50 at dinner at Union hall. At 2:30 p. m., there was a business meeting at the church, with 31 present. There have been three deaths of church members.
Average attendance of Sunday school,
33. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

Clerk—J. L. Bailey.
Treasurer—Edmund Bailey.
Prudential Committee—Pastor, deacons,
Superintendent of Sunday School—M. H.
Howard, Mrs. W. W. Barnes.
Choir—Edwin Abbott.

The Y. P. S. C. E. gave a liberal contribution to the Mexico church. The church granted Rev. S. Holden one month's vacation. He expects to sail for England the last of June, to be away two months, during which time the church will be supplied by a student.
The Oxford county conference meets with the Andover Congregational church
June 14 and 15. A committee of arrangements was appointed, viz.: J. F.
Talbot, chairman; Rev. S. Holden and

OXFORD.

"A little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men."
Craigie Assembly, Pythian Sisterhood, gave a very pleasing entertainment Friday evening, after their regular meeting to their brother Knights, which was well attended. The entertainment was by the Sweet Family, comprised of Mother Sweet and her seven daughters, who sang all the evening. The talented young (?) ladies. They were supposed to be a troupe, who traveled about giving entertainments, carrying their own orchestra with them. They rendered their songs and recitations in a very pleasing manner, one recitation being very pathetic, so much so as to bring tears to the eyes of the whole family.
Special mention is due to their music (?)
The ladies' orchestra furnished two selections, which showed they put their spirit into the music (?) and was appreciated by all. After all the selections Mother Sweet thanked the gentlemen to remain and meet her fair daughters.
Refreshments of sandwiches, coffee, pastry and fruit were served at the close of the evening to which all did justice.
We hope to meet the Sweet Family again in the future.

The tables were beautifully decorated with flowers. The affair was a complete success, and much credit is due Mrs.
Lorenzo Jones and Mrs. F. A. Lovering as chief managers of the entertainment.

the Baptist church and cemetery near the church, Monday forenoon. A delegation from A. A. Divinal Post, Mechanic Falls, came and were joined by members of posts in Hebron. Capt. H. T. Bucknam made very interesting remarks, also Comrade Hutchinson and Dr. A. R. Crane.
Three little girls gave recitations and the Academy school furnished music very appropriate for the occasion.

After which dinner was served in the ladies' room of the church. Saturday, memorial exercises were held at the Grange hall, where the children and members of the Grange took part and decorated graves near the hall.
